Fed on deck with a cut baked in

- Two day U.S.-China trade talks concluded in Shanghai today. While the latest round lacked visible progress, it was vital as being the first face-to-face meeting after talks broke down in May and trade tensions escalated. Talks continue in the U.S. in September. Moving on, all eyes are on the FOMC meeting later today, where the Fed is widely expected to deliver a 25 bps insurance cut. More importantly, investors will eye Powell's post policy conference for cues on the interest rate trajectory.
- In Europe, weak macroeconomic data reinforced the region's gloomy economic outlook. The Eurozone economy grew at a slower pace in the second quarter, in line with expectations (0.2% q/q, consensus 0.2% q/q, previous quarter 0.4% q/q). Meanwhile, the Euro area core CPI inflation eased in July (0.9% y/y, consensus 1.0% y/y, previous month 1.1% y/y), signalling weak demand. In this context, market expectations of an ECB depo rate cut has increased slightly to 90% at its next meeting in September.
- In the U.S., the MNI Chicago PMI contracted more than expected in July (44.4, consensus 51, previous month 49.7), in turn further underscoring expectations of a Fed rate cut. Elsewhere, manufacturing PMI in China increased slightly in July, although still in the contraction area (49.7, consensus 49.6, previous month 49.4), while the non-manufacturing PMI disappointed (53.7, consensus 54, previous month 54.2).
- Government bond yields inched down with the Spanish and Portuguese bonds leading the gains. The 10Y German bund yield hit fresh record low, hovering around -0.44%, while peripheral risk premia narrowed slightly.
- EURUSD depreciated amid a worsening Euro area economic outlook while the GBPUSD appreciated, recovering partially from yesterday's losses. Short positions on the GBPUSD have increased recently, so has the GBPUSD 3 month implied volatility. In emerging markets, Latam currencies gained with the MXN appreciating +0.4% as the Mexican economy grew more than expected in the second quarter (0.1% q/q, consensus -0.2% q/q, previous quarter -0.2% q/q). The TRY extended its recent gains after the Turkey's central bank cut its year-end inflation estimation to 13.9% from 14.6%.
- Stock markets ended little changed, with investors largely on the sidelines ahead of Fed policy.
