

Market Comment

Cautiousness amid trade pessimism

- Caution prevails in financial markets ahead of the resumption of trade talks and FOMC meeting minutes. High level talks are set to begin in Washington this Thursday.
- Trade pessimism intensifies: China narrowed the scope of topics of any potential trade deal with the chance of a major breakthrough fading. China said that its offer to the US will not include commitments on reforming Chinese industrial policy or government subsidies. Moreover, Trump's impeachment inquiry is raising concerns of it undermining the trade talks.
- Concerns over global growth mount as factory orders in Germany continued their decline. Germany's factory activity fell more than expected in August (-0.6% MoM, consensus -0.3% MoM, previous -2.1% MoM), although the figure for July was upwardly revised by 0.6% MoM.
- UST bond yields inched up, especially in the shorter tenors (2Y +5bps). Meanwhile, European sovereign bonds were broadly steady. Regarding peripheral bonds, the 10Y Portuguese bond yield remained unchanged after António Costa won Portugal's general elections (see). On the other hand, Greece's risk premium widened significantly as a 2.8% growth targeted by the government for 2020 lacked conviction.
- A Fed rate cut by the end of October is widely expected by financial markets, despite the resilience of U.S. employment (73%). Separately, Fed Chairman Powell said the US economy is facing some risks, but in general terms it is in a good place, while he reiterated Fed's commitment to keep the US expansion as long as possible (see)
- In FX, the DXY index gained slightly (+0.1%) as the US labor market showed some resilience. The euro remained unchanged despite the weak economic data in Germany, while the sterling slipped (-0.1%) as investors await for the UK to come up with a revised proposal after French President Macron gave one week for it. Meanwhile, G10 currencies linked to commodities slipped. In EM, the Turkish lira dropped by 2% driven by increasing geopolitical risks over Syria, while the price of Brent gained (+1.3%). LatAm currencies weakened across the board (LACI index -0.5%).
- Stock markets were mixed. European indexes picked up (Euro Stoxx +0.7%), while U.S. stocks remained flat.
