

Market Comment

Trade talks swing from optimistic to pessimistic

- U.S.-China trade developments remain the main driver in markets amid a light economic calendar. U.S. and Chinese trade negotiators held “constructive discussions” in a phone call on Saturday to address each side’s core concerns of phase one of the trade deal. Nonetheless, early risk appetite eased after reports that Chinese officials are pessimistic about the prospect of a trade deal.
- Last Friday U.S. industrial production, retail sales and Empire manufacturing were weaker than expected, leading Fed’s GDPNowcast models to be revised downward for 4Q 2019 GDP growth estimated to around 0.3-0.4% SA QoQ Ann from around 0.7-1%.
- The yield on the 10Y UST erased early gains (-2bps) on the back of negative trade headlines. In Europe, peripheral bonds outperformed core and semi-core bonds with their risk premia narrowing. Regarding monetary policy, ECB’s members remain split. German officials, Jens Weidmann and Madis Muller, warned that the ECB has reached its lower zero bound, while ECB’s Philips Leane said that the European monetary authority has not reached the limit yet.
- Sterling outperformed today against its G10 peers (GBPUSD +0.5%) as the Conservatives still lead the latest opinion polls. The Japanese yen gained marginally, as did the Swiss Franc, due to its safe-haven appeal. The USD depreciated slightly (DXY index -0.3%) after Friday’s US weak data, while today’s meeting between President Trump and Jerome Powell also increased downward pressure on the USD, despite the fact that the Fed Chairman’s comments were consistent with his remarks at his congressional hearings last week (see). Elsewhere, LatAm currencies were mixed with the Colombian peso leading the losses (USDCOP -0.7%). Nonetheless, the Chilean peso extended its Friday’s gains on hopes over a new constitution.
- In commodities, oil prices fell significantly (Brent -2%) as the uncertainty on a trade deal has increased concern over global demand, while Aramco’s IPO failed to attract foreign investors’ interest. On the other hand, gold prices inched up modestly.
- European stock markets edged lower with investors moving away from cyclical as market risk sentiment soured. The Euro Stoxx 50 fell by 0.3%, dragged down by automobiles as the industry slows down. Meanwhile, U.S. stock indices remained close to all-time highs.
